What are we going to do?

1 We need to collect data from validators and facilitators that currently work in these jobs and study about how are the current studies for validators and facilitators.

This is our first IO, scheduled for September 2021.

2 The investigation from the IO1 will give us information about the skills that facilitators and validators need for their jobs.

We will analyse them and publish two skills cards: one for facilitators and one for validators.

This is the second IO scheduled for October 2021

3 We need to organise the skills cards to build a curriculum afterwards.
That means, the subjects that validators and facilitators have to learn.

We will publish two curricula: one for facilitators and one for validators. Each curriculum will include the modules, the hours of study and a description of teaching materials and methods.

This is the third IO scheduled for April, 2022

4 Students need materials to learn the subjects in a course. We are going to create the training materials for facilitators in English.

We are going to create the training materials for validators in English, German, Italian, Romanian, Slovene and Spanish. We will also create Trainers' Guides to explain the teachers how to use the materials and reach the learning goals.

The training materials for facilitators will be available on November 2022, and the materials for validators on June 2023, those are our forth IO.

5 We are going to validate the resources to check that they are comprehensible for the validators trainees.

We will obtain different tools and solutions to evaluate if the students learn the subjects properly.

We will also propose recommendations about how to use these evaluation tools and solutions.

This will be our fifth IO, scheduled for June, 2023

6 There are some courses for facilitators and validators, but without an official certification.

We are going to work on a certified course for validators and facilitators, checking that every step of the creation of the course is certified, and proposing solutions to create certified courses for facilitators and validators in Europe.

This will be our sixth IO, scheduled for June, 2023
